Problem Statement

There are too many sites to keep up with all the work professors give out and it is easy to forget and/or get overwhelmed.

Students experience the problem

The problem is evident in students grades that fall when they miss work out of confusion or they can't find the due date on another site.

Students pay for their education and to fail a class can be a significant economic problem